CHINOOK MEAT MARKET

Local Newslets

Mr. Geo. Aiken, of Vancouver, arrived here last Saturday to look after his farm interests.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Todd & daughter Mae have been attending the Calgary Stampede also visited at other points.

Heavy rains are badly needed in order to save the crop. Wednesday there was a shower over part of the district, south of town. The month of July has been hot and dry.

The next meeting of the Women's Institute will be held Thursday Aug. 2nd, at Mrs. Marcy's home. The assisting hostesses are Mrs. Otto and Mrs. Milligan. The topic "Child Welfare and Public Health" will be taken by Mrs. Wm. Davis and her committee. The roll call is "Ideas for healthful school lunch".

Mrs. Fowler, of Calgary arrived here on Friday and will visit at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. W. Rideout.

Miss Audrey Neff, of Hanna has been visiting for a week or two with her sister, Mrs. J. C. Turple. She also spent last week end with Mrs. E. Pfeiffer.

Mr. A. E. Hocart has left on a two weeks vacation, which he will spend in Calgary and points north.

Anxiety Felt At Olds

OLDs, July 18. (Special). Considerable anxiety is being felt in this district as to the outcome of the crop which, until a few days ago, gave promise of being one of the best ever garnered in this district.

Card of Thanks

The Social Credit supporters of Chinook and district wish to take this opportunity to thank Mr. Gus Cook, who so kindly donated the hotel ball room for the meeting held on Friday last, also all those who helped in anyway with the meeting.

The Advance

Grant To Be Spent On Market Highway North Youngstown - Chinook

Sounding Creek Municipal District Will Spend Grant of $420.00 On Road Connecting Hemaruka, Youngstown and Chinook

Locations for the using of the government grant for road work were decided upon at Saturday's meeting of the Municipal District Sounding Creek and the grant which this year amounts to $420 will be used on the market highways north of Youngstown and Chinook.

The work will take place in the divisions of Councillors Barlow and Cameron, division three and four respectively. On the market highway north of Youngstown it will be for three miles westward from the south east corner of section 5 in township 31, range 8, which will be stretched from the end of the gravel north of the creek to the corner two miles south to Wastina school. It is the intention later to grade this two miles and thus complete the road to Hemaruka.

In Mr. Barlow's division the work will be south of sections 4 and 5 in township 31, range 7, which will be some five miles farther east on the same range line as the other work.

M. Knupp was given the lease of the south-west quarter of 14 30 7 for haying purposes, the lease being at the rate of fifty cents per load.

An application was received from M. E. Webb, of Veteran, for grazing lease for a block of land Mr. Webb wanted to run some 200 head of cattle in the municipality, but the council refused his request as they did not believe it desirable to have a none owner of land in the municipality pasture that amount of stock.

The secretary was instructed to write the department municipal affairs, Edmonton, requesting that relief allowances be continued at the present rate, which is now down to a minimum.

Bills totaling $421.82 were passed for payment.

A number of letters were read to the council.

All members were present including C. A. Coughlin solicitor for the council.

The next council meeting will be held on August 11.

Ottawa Speaking

A Canadian of Ottawa sends a letter to the editor of Liberty Magazine in a current issue. Jas. Lambert, of 340 Colton Road, Rockcliff, Park, Ottawa, calls attention to the comparison between European borders and the border between Canada and the United States. He says:

"There are no fortifications—only a wire fence here and there. No fear exists among the people of these two countries, and that is the chief trouble in Europe now. Each country fears its neighbor and if that fear is not eliminated another war is inevitable. I hope European nations before long agree on a treaty similar to that existing between the U.S.A. and Canada in regard to the fortifying of their frontiers."

THE ADVANCE WEATHER BULLETIN

Monday, July 23—Clearing weather in most sections, but around central parts clouds and probably light rains in few spots. High temperatures but soon changes to cooler.

Tuesday, July 24—Clear nearly everywhere, except some clouds and very light showers in the regions near Great Lakes and south-east. Slight decline in temperatures.

Wednesday, July 25—Indications are for nearly clear weather generally, but slightly unsettled in southwest sections and along southern borders near Great Lakes.

Thursday, July 26—Rains in central provinces become somewhat more general and heavier, drifting through toward the southeast. Temperatures nearly stationary or slowly declining.

Friday, July 27—In far northwest unsettled, but generally clear in east; slowly declining temperatures.

Saturday, July 28—The mild northwest disturbance drifts east through central provinces carrying showery rains and somewhat cooler weather in all sections.

Sunday, July 29—All west and northwest clearing, but some clouds and scattering rains along southern borders and in south-east near Great Lakes regions. Cool, and in parts of northwest cool weather.

Week of July 23 to 29, 1934, in central provinces begins with clear weather and unusually high temperatures. At various points a few clouds and light rains, but remains generally clear until about mid week when much heavier and more general rains may be expected and in nearly all sections a steady decline of temperatures. While the rains are likely to be scattering most of the week there may be nearly normal total amounts in many of the western and southwestern sections. Last of week very cool and in far north cold.

The forecast is for about average or normal mean temperature for the entire calendar month as a whole, but yet it seems probable there will be a few cool days near the 11th and again about the 30th, but with very much warmer weather coming about 22nd. Rainfall also should be nearly up to normal, but the distribution throughout the country is expected to be quite uneven during this month and on account some sections may be rather too dry, especially in last half of the month about northeast sections of the central provinces.

For week beginning July 23, 1934.

Temperature	Warm	Mild	Cold
Mon.	23
Tues.	24
Wed.	25
Thurs.	26
Fri.	27
Sat.	28
Sun.	29

This is for northwest regions; maxima and minima occur 1 day later about central regions; 2 days later about the Great Lakes and 3 days later on Atlantic Coast.

Heathdale Happenings

Coltholme U.F.A. Local will meet at Cloverleaf school on Saturday evening at 7:30 p.m. to elect a delegate to the coming Acadia Federal Convention to be held at Hanna, Saturday, August 4.

OCCASIONAL WIFE

By EDNA ROBERT WEBSTER
Author of "Jorista", "Lipstick Girl", Etc.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla, Hoyt and Peter Anson, young and in love, marry secretly, deciding to live their own lives apart until Peter is able to provide for her. Peter is a young, struggling sculptor trying to win a competition for a scholarship abroad and Camilla is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family. She is not to inherit money when she comes of age and so is studying commercial art in the hope of landing an agency job. Others in the story are Avis Werth, another wealthy girl who is trying to win Peter, Sylvia Todd, Peter's mother, and Gus Matson, his former roommate with whom he has quarrelled. After a party at an exclusive hotel where the rest of the members of the party go to a cabaret to continue the gaiety, Peter and Camilla slip off to the beach by themselves and fall asleep on the sand. When they awake it is early morning and Avis and another boy are standing near them. This makes it necessary for Camilla to announce before the party that she and Peter are married. Camilla urges Peter to accept some of her earnings to help him along, but Peter refuses and they quarrel. After Camilla has gone from the studio, Avis Werth calls and persuades Peter to accept a loan of $1,000. Peter finishes his exhibit and asks Avis and Camilla for suggestions as to a name for it. Camilla suggests "Eager Youth," and Avis "Inspiration." Peter adopts the latter title and Camilla, heartless, goes to the studio for quiet and to think. Peter and Avis follow later, and as the lights are turned on, she states she has shattered to pieces. She accuses Camilla of doing this, and Camilla, stunned by the disaster, and hurt and horrified by the accusation, faints.

At Camilla's suggestion, Peter enters as his exhibit, statue he had sculptured especially for her as a wedding gift. They named it "Land of Hope."

Camilla's advertising campaign was a success from the beginning, and it was arranged to have radio broadcasts, in addition to newspaper advertising. Camilla to both write the "Tiny Tots" stories and to deliver them over the radio.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER LIII.

It was Avis who first learned the news, even before Peter himself. She had arranged with John Danforth that he should telephone her the result of the committee vote, immediately. To Peter Anson was awarded the Paris scholarship.

Avis was speechless with surprise, such as his exhibit, statue he had sculptured especially for her as a wedding gift. They named it "Land of Hope."

Camilla's advertising campaign was a success from the beginning, and it was arranged to have radio broadcasts, in addition to newspaper advertising. Camilla to both write the "Tiny Tots" stories and to deliver them over the radio.

"You wouldn't jest with me, Uncle John?" she asked incredulously. "Of course not, child. But I will admit that my vote must have been the deciding factor, because he won by just one point. The nude figure 'Flight' by someone named Nels Nelson, was his best rival, but I can honestly assure you that it wouldn't have been my choice had the other been done by a cannibal in the South Seas. In my opinion, the immigrant group was far better, and one of the two best. So I do hope that you are happy about it, my dear."

"So happy that I am sending you a kiss over the wire, to do until I see you, Get it?" jubilantly. "And now, I must tell Peter. Thanks a lot for calling me, Uncle John."

terribly sure that you hadn't a chance, darling. Oh, Peter, isn't it just too wonderful!"

"Not too wonderful to me," he drew a long breath of satisfaction, beginning to realize that his fondest dream had come true. "Now you just watch your husband make good. Nothing is going to stop me, not if I know it. I am going to work as I've never worked before. Think of it, Camilla—Despense, the Trocadero, all the masters and masterpieces of the world to study with and work from. Paris! the mecca of art and artists!"

"I'm so glad for you, dear Peter!" she said softly and earnestly, then a weak tone crept into her voice. "But—Paris—is so far away from me." With an effort she smiled as if she were joking. She would not make Peter feel wretched about leaving her. She had to be gallant about it. She had made this very provision, herself, when she married Peter; that if he had the good fortune to go to Paris she would wait at home for him and take care of herself. How simple an obligation the last was going to be—but ah! the waiting!

His face sobered, also. "I know. Always something to cloud up a blue sky," impatiently.

"We'll just have to ride over the clouds like good sports, and come out in sunshine again to make the most of it," she encouraged him cheerfully, while her heart yearned to hold him with her.

"If I were any good, I should manage to do enough to take us both," he began tentatively.

"And worry about your double obligation until you couldn't make the most of every precious minute you will have abroad. No, Peter, you will go to Paris just as you would have, had you never seen me, or rather, just as you would have had we not married. You will take my love with you and our memories, and you will return to me a bigger, better man," she managed to keep her voice firm and practical.

"Well," he admitted, "I'd be all kinds of a thief to drag you away from your work now, when everything is breaking big for you and you are earning more than I'll be able to for a couple of years, at least—perhaps, ever."

Again, he had turned her generous contribution of her happiness toward his career, back to a selfish desire to proceed with her own success and his reward. It hurt her cruelly, but she reasoned that if it were the only way to relieve Peter of his sense of obligation to her, that was the way to leave it. There was no way to convince him that she would rather live wretchedly with him in Paris, or anywhere, than to enjoy the fruits of her own achievements, alone.

"I know you would do it, Peter Anson! May I be the first to congratulate you?"

"For—what?" Peter demanded stupidly, as if there had been no possibility of a cause for congratulations.

"For what?" she exclaimed, turning to Professor Drake with astonishment. "It has paralyzed him, already. He can't speak, can't even remember that the annual national exhibit has reached its climax. He will have to snap out of it, if he expects to reach Paris."

"Well—well, my boy," Professor Drake was stepping him on the back and pumping his hand by this time.

"Of course, we knew you could do it. And when I saw your entry, I fully expected it."

"But—I don't understand," Peter was still dazed and incredulous. "You don't mean that I won the scholarship with that immigrant group?"

"We don't expect you by a swallow it all at once, little boy. Ann Carter who had seen much of him during his long association with the professor, chided him. "Take it easy—a word at a time: Peter—Anson—is awarded—the Paris—Scholarship—in—the National—Exhibit."

"All I've got to say is, he doesn't deserve it," Peter roused suddenly, and his sunny face broke into such a smile as it had not won since his wedding day. "In more ways than one, what I mean. Well, thanks folks, for the compliments and all, but I'm off to tell my wife the front page news." And his long legs strode across the room as if he were discharged from a canon.

He was waiting at the entrance of the building where Camilla worked, when she emerged a few minutes after five o'clock. In one leap, he was beside her, holding her hands and telling her all in one excited breath, "Camilla, I did it—I mean we did it."

"Did what?" she asked, bewildered, but already absorbing the joy which emanated from his whole being.

"The prize—Paris—the immigrant group. You made me enter it—darling!" he explained incoherently.

"Peter—not really?" she gasped.

"Absolutely! Here—where can we go to talk—shall we go somewhere for dinner—here, taxi," he summoned a passing cab. And presently, they were settled in the tonneau, holding hands, and they were riding out toward Charm Cottage, the favorite rendezvous of their special celebration.

"Can you believe it?" he demanded, when they were facing each other across their favorite window table.

"Of course, I can. I might have expected it more, except you were so

Progress In Surgery

General Anesthetic No Longer Necessary For Major Operations

The following article by H. H. Bashford, M.D., appeared recently in the Nineteenth Century and After: During the last twenty years there have been very considerable strides in our knowledge of local anesthetics—in the science of inducing an anæsthesia, that is to say, sufficient for major operations without the necessity of administering a general anæsthetic. It has been found, for instance, that by injecting a suitable solution of some anæsthetic drug into the sheath of the spinal cord the roots of both entering and departing nerves—sensory and motor respectively—can be sufficiently affected to produce an entire loss of relaxation, over the whole area of the body below the point of injection. For operations below the waist this has been a development of wide application. It has enabled these to be carried out upon persons suffering from diseased hearts or lungs, in which the administration of a general anæsthetic would have been attended with the gravest danger, even if it had been justifiable at all.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

TO-DAY

To-day means beginning afresh; With the blessing of dawn Comes life, budding out like the east, And the old things are gone.

The old things, forgotten, depart, Be they bitter or sweet, From out of the thought and the life What is past must retreat.

To-day bears a gift in its hands That no other could bring, And its light has fired torches of hope, Like the promise of spring.

In the past were there sorrows and Was there old tyranny? Then look up and be glad and march On to to-day sets you free!

Huge Birthday Cake

Baked For Centenary Of Australian Cities And Held 100 Sovereigns

A great birthday cake was made and baked to mark the centenary of Victoria and the capital city of Melbourne, Australia. Into it went ten tons of the finest products of the state of Victoria, including these items: four and one-half tons fruit; three-quarters ton almonds, one and one-half tons butter, one and one-half tons flour, and 36,000 eggs.

Early in the celebrations the cake was cut into a quarter of a million pieces, each one and one-half ounces, which were sold at a nominal price in sealed boxes. One hundred specially minted golden sovereigns were placed in the cake, and every buyer had a chance of winning a rare coin estimated to be worth $500 as a souvenir after the celebration. Near the heart of the city Birthday Cake building was erected, a replica of the cake itself, 50 feet high and 300 feet in circumference, surmounted by 100 candles.

The use of the soybean alone for ensilage is not recommended but high quality ensilage has been produced by a combination of soybeans and corn, mixed in the proportion of about one part soybeans and three parts corn. The two crops can be grown together or they may be produced separately and mixed at the time of filling the silo. Harvesting will be easier and the mixture better obtained when the two crops are grown separately. — Soybeans pamphlet, Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Illustrating His Sermon

The colored preacher was describing the "bad place" to a congregation of awed listeners.

"Friends," he said, "you've seen this bad place iron running out of furnace, ain't you all, white-hot aizzling and hissing?" Well—

The preacher pointed a long, lean finger at the frightened crowd. "Well," he continued, "they use that stuff for ice cream in the place I been talking about."

Little Helps For This Week

"My meat is to do the will of Him that sent me and to finish His work." John 4:34.

I am glad to think I am not bound to make the world go right But only to discover and to do. With cheerful heart, the work that God appoints. I will trust in Him, That He can hold His own; and I will take His will, above the world He sendeth me, To be my chiefest good.

—Jean Ingelow

Do not object if you feel your duties are too insignificant. "Whatever thy hand findeth to do, do it with all thy might." If you have brothers, sisters, a father or mother, weigh earnestly what claim does lie upon you on behalf of each, and consider it as the one thing needful to pay them more and more honestly and nobly what you owe. What matter how miserable one is if they can do that.—Thomas Carlyle.

House Cost Sixteen Cents

Cash Outlay Of Serbian Family Was For Glass

Zadruga in Serbian means a big family where brothers and cousins have not divided the family property, but lead a community life, under the leadership usually of the oldest member of the family. These zadrugas are rapidly disappearing in modern times, but there are still some left.

The members of one such zadruga have recently performed a feat which has spread their fame all over Yugoslavia. They have built a house which has cost them (excepting the cost of their own labor) only 16 cents in American money. This is the zadruga of the family of Kujundjich in the village of Leova Brda, near Potcha, Herzegovina.

As the original house of this zadruga was too small for all the members of the family, it was decided to build a new house. As funds were short, they decided to build everything themselves. Using the stone from their own quarry, they made the slabs, then they cut the necessary wood. Lime which they themselves had made was used. The house was covered with wooden planks and wooden pegs were used, which also they made themselves. Their only cash outlay was made when they bought glass for the windows, and that cost them eight dinars, or 16 cents.

Held In Trust

Panama Canal The Cross Roads Of The Americas

President Roosevelt has re-dedicated the Panama canal to "all nations in the needs of peaceful commerce." The hope that the great waterway connecting the Pacific and Atlantic oceans will serve the needs of peaceful trade was expressed by Mr. Roosevelt in an address at the palace of President Arias of Panama, where he was a dinner guest.

The president said that this "cross roads of the Americas" is being held in trust for all the world.

Social Credit Candidate For Lacombe Seat

LACOMBE, July 23—Decision to place a Social Credit candidate in the Lacombe provincial constituency for the coming general election was made when a Social Credit constituency organization was completed at a meeting here which instructed the newly elected directorate to fix a date for a nominating convention at an early date. The present member for the Lacombe riding is Hon. Irene Paribby, minister without portfolio in the Alberta government.

Important Seed Grain Field Days
Three important seed grain field days will be held in the province during August, one at Vermillion, August 2; at Claresholm, August 3, and at Olds on August 10. These are held under the auspices of the provincial department of agriculture and dominion seed branch, co-operating with the Alberta Wheat Pool, the Canada Malting Co., the U.G.G. and the Western Canada Flour Mills. Samples of grain from seed drills of farmers in various districts were collected this spring, and these samples have been grown in plots at the schools of agriculture and will be inspected on the field days thus giving an opportunity for all concerned to note the kind and quality of seed.

Here and There

One graduate of the Anglican Theological College of British Columbia and four undergraduates are out for a summer of adventure and color since embarking recently aboard Canadian Pacific coastal liner, "Princess Norah" for the Yukon. Her 100-odd passengers also included miners, prospectors and northern railway and steamship men going in for the season.

The Princess Elaine, popular Vancouver-Nanaimo ferry of the Canadian Pacific B.C. Coast steamship service, is back from overhaul with the very latest in lunch rooms installed aboard. It is 46 feet long and 15 feet wide, and is provided with lunch counter and tables.

General improvement in business is apparent throughout Canada although many problems still remain to be solved is the opinion of Jackson Dods, general manager of the Bank of Montreal, who sailed for Europe aboard the Empress of Australia recently.

The Canadian Pacific 42,500-ton Atlantic flagship Empress of Britain completed her world cruise of 30,016 miles last month on arrival at New York and sailed again for Cherbourg and Southampton to be fitted for her normal season sailings between Southampton and Quebec.

An English bulldog, scotch terrier, two boxes of swan's eggs and four honing pigeons were among the Canadian Pacific Express shipments arriving at Quebec recently aboard the Duchess of York from Liverpool, Belfast and Glasgow.

"With a soundly administered unified system, Canada would be able to anticipate within a reasonable period of time, a balanced railway budget and would be able to finance any justifiable extensions which expanding settlement and development might in future demand," E. W. Eddy, K.C., chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, declared in a recent speech advocating nationalization for administrative purposes of the two major railways.

Notorious John Dillinger Exterminated in Chicago

At last the law caught up to the arch criminal of America, when John Dillinger, defying all attempts to capture him stepped into a federal trap last night following a visit to a theatre and paid the penalty of bravado is death.

Right up to the last minute he was the Dillinger of story and fact and as he realized that he was facing his fate attempted to draw his revolver and once more show his way out of the clutches of officers who had their sights trained upon him. Dillinger had attempted to disguise himself by feminine beauty aids. His face had been lifted and his eyebrows plucked. His fingertips had been etched with acid to foil finger print identification. But he could not change the yellowish green eyes of his and it was this identification largely that aided in his extermination. Five bullets reached their mark, all of them said to have been fired by one man.

Hail and Rain Wreak Havoc In Manitoba

WINNIPEG, July 6—Farmers in scattered sections of Western Canada today ruefully surveyed ruined grain fields beaten down by a series of hail and rain storms. Full extent of the damage to crops could not be estimated but it was believed to be heavy.

Grain stands over an area six miles near Hildebrand, central Manitoba were entirely wiped out. Late Friday, hail stones drilled holes in automobile tops.

At Dauphin and south of Riding Mountain Park window panes were smashed and chickens killed. Grain stands were flattened by hail stones the size of walnuts.

Regina, Saskatoon and Prince Albert, in central and northern Saskatchewan reported a storm of icy pellets. Southeast of Leask 50 per cent of the standing crop was cut down.

Roads were impassable near Rockyford, Alberta, following a heavy visitation of rain and hail.
